Chancy Business

When rain strikes the Art Fair, visitors can get wet—but artists can get soaked.

"About eight years ago I did thirteen shows," says potter Jim Lauer, "and on twelve of them I just had this rain cloud that followed me around the country." Lauer and his wife, Nancy, have traveled from Kansas to exhibit at the Summer Art Fair for eighteen years, often with great success. But that year, he says, was "horrible."

Rain isn't the only worry; high temperatures also can cost an artist thousands of dollars in sales. "If we get hundred degree weather, even ninety-five degree weather

[in Michigan], it affects the crowd," says Lauer. "They turn almost into a zombie. They can't concentrate on what they want to buy, and it's so hot they don't want to carry anything."

Even when the weather cooperates, being a fair artist is a demanding occupation. About 95 percent of glass sculptor Bill Slade's income comes from the fifteen or so fairs he does each year—about all he can supply with constant production from his Jacksonville, Florida, studio. "People don't understand what it means when you go into business for yourself," says Slade. "The hours meld into one another, and it becomes at least sixty or seventy hours a week."

Each fair is a financial risk. "I've cut down drastically [on fairs], because there are a lot of fairs that don't sell well," says Indiana oil painter Carol Rabenau. "You have your hotel bill, your eating out, and your entry fee. You can walk away seven hundred dollars in the hole if you don't sell." Rabenau, whose paintings start at $1,100, considers a fair successful if she sells six or seven. Occasionally, though, she doesn't sell any. She makes a living, but because her income fluctuates so much, "it's never anything I can depend on."

For Judy Krawski, a woodworker and first-time exhibitor from Delaware, there's transportation and lost shop time to take into account, besides direct costs. "For me to feel I had a good show, I would have to make at least three thousand dollars," she says. She often falls short, especially on the East Coast. "There are so many shows," she says. "You can almost, in the summer, have a show to go to every weekend."

The glut has made the relatively uncrowded Midwest—including Ann Arbor—even more desirable for artists than in the past. According to a rating in Sunshine Artists magazine last year, Ann Arbor's Street Art Fair was the second-best fair in the U.S. for sales in fine arts and sixth in fine crafts. The State Street Area Art Fair was eighth in fine arts and thirteenth in fine crafts. And the Summer Art Fair, one of only four in the country to place in every category, was thirty-first in fine arts, forty-first in fine crafts, and fiftieth in traditional crafts.

"Ann Arbor is one of the few fairs where people actually come to spend money," says Loretta Eby, a glass blower based in Watkinsville, Georgia, who's been in the State Street Area Fair for six years. "It's hell to do because of the hours, but if people spend enough money, it's worth it."

Because they sell directly to the public, artists keep all their fair revenue instead of splitting the take fifty-fifty with a gallery or store owner. And artists like the direct contact with their customers. "I've gotten some of my best ideas just talking with women who come into my booth," says Judy Krawski.

"You spend a lot of time working and making your ware," adds Jim Lauer, who spends much of the year isolated in his rural Kansas studio. "It's nice to get that gratification, when people say they like your work."

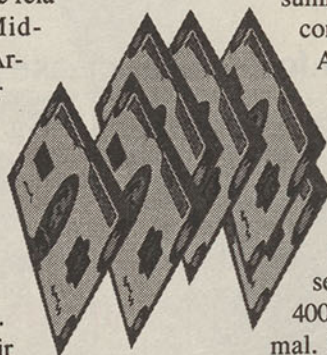

—Ken Garber

Four-Day Boom

The fairs have a huge impact on sales at downtown businesses.

Some sell as much during the four-day fair as they do in a month the rest of the summer, according to a survey conducted last year by Street Art Fair director Susan Froelich. Three-quarters of the businesses responding to the survey reported increased sales during Art Fair week, with the most successful seeing revenues as much as 400 and 500 percent above normal. But others experienced no impact at all, and still others reported a significant drop in sales.

Froelich, who conducted the study for her master's degree in public administration at EMU, surveyed twenty-one types of businesses, ranging from clothing shops to hair salons to shipping services. Not surprisingly, the businesses that reported the most significant gains were hotels and motels, gift shops, clothing stores, frame shops, and bookstores. One gift shop reported that its weekly sales jumped from the $500-$999 range to $5,000-$9,000, while another vaulted from the $1,000-$1,499 bracket to a phenomenal $20,000-$39,000.

The losers were mostly service businesses cut off from their regular customers, such as the barbershops in the Main Street and South University areas. On the other hand, two hair salons in the Main Street area reported strong revenue gains because they switched their emphasis from services to selling hair and skin care products during the fair.

The spenders include the artists themselves, who stay at the hotels and motels and, when they're not trying to make a living, eat at Zingerman's and Seva, shop at Borders and Schoolkids', and visit art galleries. Illinois sculptor Jack McLean says his son, Jess, fourteen, and daughter Chloe, twelve, "have Christmas in July while we're there. We've been an Art Fair family for so long that they know that's the time of year when business is good, so they shop for everything from shoes to software."

—Bonnie Brereton

Art Outreach

The four days of the Art Fair bring in about a fifth of the entire summer's visitors to the University of Michigan Museum of Art.

Last year, the museum had 15,206 visitors during the months of June, July, and August, with 3,281 of them between July 20 and 23. Unfortunately, from the museum's point of view, most of them stayed only long enough to use the restrooms and cool off.

This year, with support from the Street Art Fair, the museum is offering an activity it hopes will keep fairgoers inside a little longer. "Places to Go and People to

"Nydia" stars in the U-M art museum's self-guided art walk.

"See" is a self-guided walk, sort of a scavenger hunt, through five main areas of the museum. Premiering the weekend before the fair, it offers visitors a chance to cool off, enjoy some art, and even get off their feet. Highlights of the tour include Helen Frankenthaler's enormous 1969 abstract painting "Sunset Corner," which visitors are urged to try looking at while lying on the floor.

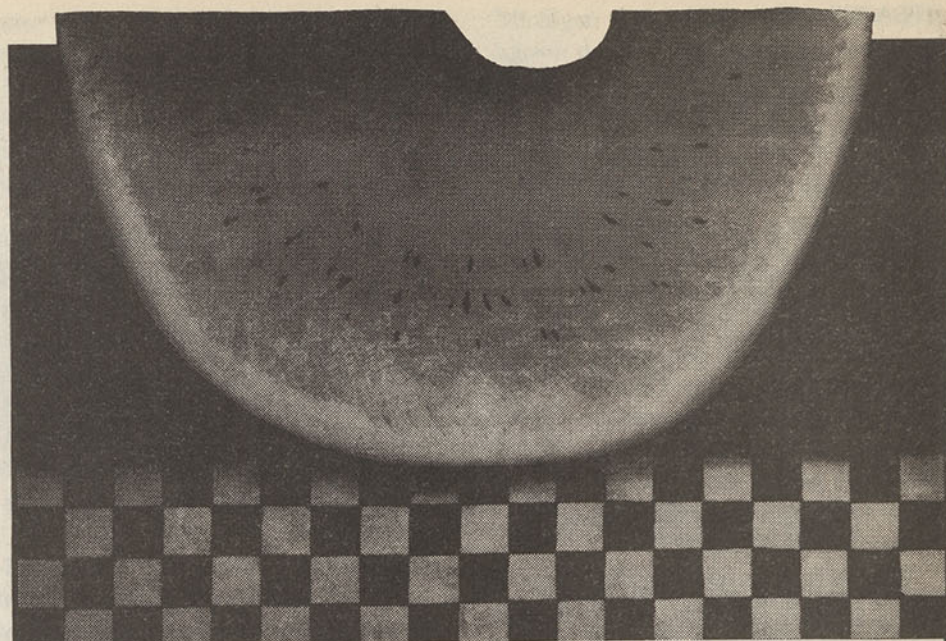

Other works included in the guide for the walk are "Nydia," a sculpture by nineteenth-century Ann Arbor artist Randolph Rogers and the first work in the museum's collection; "The Road to Shu," an eighteenth-century scroll painting by Japanese painter Matsumura Goshun; and contrasting Biblical canvases from Italian painters of the fifteenth and seventeenth centuries. Tower Records will give away 500 "single" CD's and tapes to kids who come in with a copy of the guide.

The tour is designed for children ten and up to use independently; younger kids may need the help of their grown-ups. Older kids will probably be enticed by the title of another exhibit, "The Allure of the Nude," which consists of sixty-four paintings, drawings, and photographs from the museum's collection.

passports, or look up books in the public library.

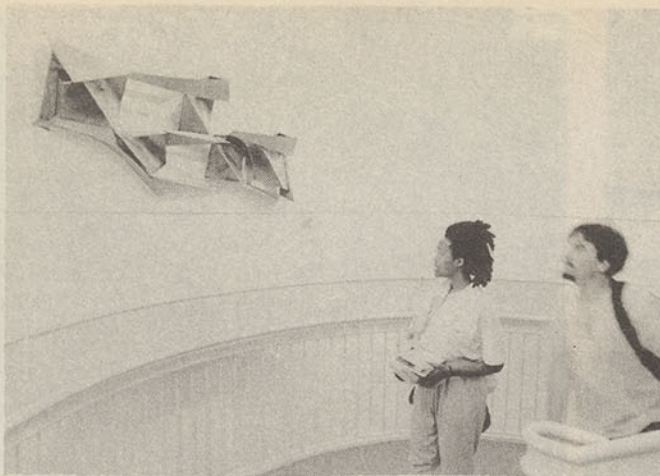

Since 1987, the Street Art Fair on South U has purchased or commissioned at least one work a year from its artists as gifts to the people of Ann Arbor. A total of twenty-five are now installed throughout the area, decorating City Hall, the County Courthouse, Washtenaw Community College, the Ann Arbor Art Association's gallery shop, the Ann Arbor Convention and Visitors Bureau, and local hospitals.

The fair budgets about $6,000 a year for special projects. This year it gave scholarships to art students at the U-M, Eastern Michigan, and Washtenaw Community College in addition to commissioning a mixed-media assemblage by Kansas artist Dwain Workman for the library. The work is the third such gift to the library since the building was remodeled in 1991 and was chosen by people from both the library and the fair. A library committee scoped the scene on the first day of last year's fair, recommending several artists for further consideration by Street Art Fair director Susan Froelich and the co-chairs of the fair's acceptance committee, Jean Lau and Norma Penchansky-Glasser.

They settled on Workman. There was a piece in his booth they liked, but he said he would prefer doing a commissioned work to selling them something off the wall and offered a better price in the bargain. Getting him from his booth on South University to the library to see the site was a feat in itself. "We dashed over to the library, parked illegally, went through the back door, ran up the stairs, showed him the spot and the other library pieces, and he said all right," Froelich recalls.

The location, on the landing between the third and fourth floors, is bathed in light from a skylight above and surrounded by white walls and railings. Workman's piece, a dreamy pastel collage that combines a series of compositions within miniature windows with flowing fields of color, was installed this spring.

"Transcending Space," a soaring, graceful bronze wall sculpture by Kansas artist Ronald Hinton, occupies a comparable spot on the middle landing, and "Winter Solstice," a cool pastel paper medley of jagged lines and angular shapes, is on the wall of the first. All three provide a nice change of pace from fine print and computer screens.

Soto's Comeback

Joe Tiboni is bringing some excitement back to Art Fair entertainment.

There used to be a time when the music at the art fairs was almost as compelling an attraction as the art. Along with local and regional performers, there were acrobats, jugglers, mimes, dancers, tightrope walkers, magicians, and sword swallowers. But many of them lost their performance spaces when the U-M shooed them off the Diag decade ago and subsequently closed the stretch of East University that had housed the Street Art Fair's popular Graceful Arch Stage. An assortment of street musicians, most of them from out of town, filled the void. Two years ago, the fairs moved to rein in street performers as well, limiting them to set sites and schedules.

Joe Tiboni, veteran booking agent, disc jockey, and sound technician—not to mention former owner of the late and lamented Joe's Star Lounge—was one of the most vocal and persistent critics of what he saw as the descent of the fairs' music scene from a variety of showcases for the best local talent into a noisy chaos that benefited no one. "Andean street musicians were popping up on every corner, playing all day," says Tiboni. "They were driving the art fairs and the merchants and some of the artists to distraction because there was no regulation over how long they could play or where they could locate or anything like that."

"The influx of performers from out of town, out of state, out of country, became overwhelming," says Shary Brown, director of the Summer Art Fair. But the fairs' initial attempt to regulate the music scene "offended the very people we intended to attract," says Brown. "We heard loud and clear from the music community. We listened to those people, enlisted their help, and this project now is the distillation of that input."

The three fairs enlisted Tiboni's help by hiring him as their music coordinator, funded by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Activities. "The fairs hired me to try to bring local musicians into the system and make it work better for everybody," says Tiboni. This year Tiboni has booked all eight of the fairs' performance spaces. He's increased the number of local performers, including, for the first time in years, rock acts like the Restroom Poets, Fully Loaded, and Kiss Me Screaming at Liberty Plaza. But he's proudest to have brought back "slack rope" walker Will Soto. He promises that Soto, a favorite Diag performer before the U-M's crackdown, will perform "frequently" during the fair at the corner of State and North University. (See Art Fair Entertainment, p. 55, for stage schedules.)

The Oldest Volunteer

One or two art fairs ago, Elvina Hogle started bringing a little stool along with her when she worked at the State Street Area Art Fair information booth on Liberty and State.

"But I don't get to sit down because I'm so busy," she says. In March, Hogle celebrated her ninety-third birthday.

A member of the Ann Arbor Art Association, Hogle simply signed up about twenty years ago when the group asked for Art Fair volunteers. At the information booth, she answers questions from passersby and, sometimes, fair artists. She gives directions, explains over and over that, yes, there are three separate art fairs, and sometimes recommends restaurants. "I tell them the places that cost more and the places that cost less."

Hogle divides her time between homes in Deltona, Florida, and Ann Arbor, where on one recent afternoon she stopped trimming the hedges in her front yard to show a visitor her own artwork. Her most recent painting, done last year, won a blue ribbon at a women's club she belongs to in Florida, she says proudly. (Until recently, she also volunteered at a small art fair in Deltona.) The painting is a study of the leaves Hogle sweeps up on her sidewalks in the fall. "I had given away all my leaf paintings," she says. "Finally, I decided I'd do one for me."

Hogle's home is filled with artwork—her own and others'. One sculpture is of an old man holding a baby. "I've always been interested in changes that take place in a person's life," she says. She adds at least one "little thing" from the Art Fair every year, chosen after she has toured all three fairs. "I go alone," she says briskly. "I don't want somebody hanging out with me who wants to go to another booth."

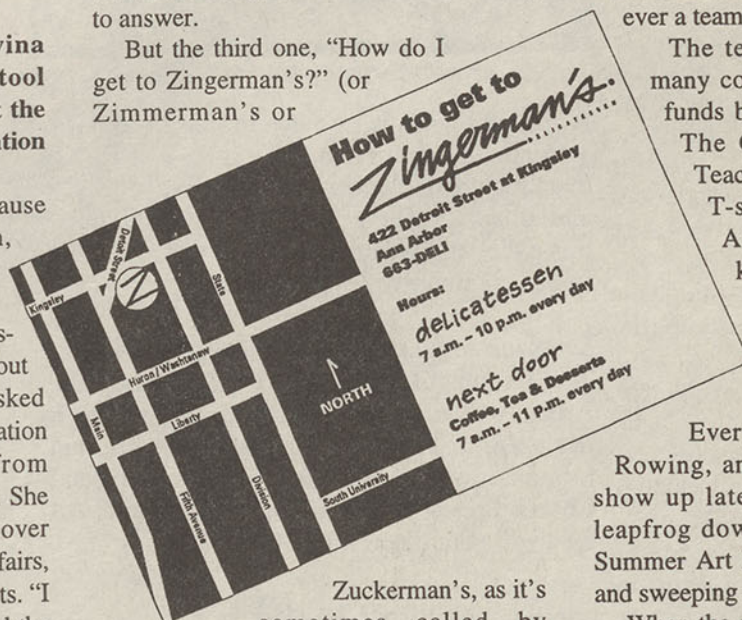

—Eve Silberman

Fair Fame

The Michigan Guild put Zingerman's on the art fair map.

"Where am I?" and "Where's the nearest Portajohn?" are, predictably, the most frequently asked questions asked of the volunteers at the six information booths scattered throughout the fair. They're easy to answer.

But the third one, "How do I get to Zingerman's?" (or Zimmerman's or Zuckerman's, as it's sometimes called by strangers), is more challenging, given Ann Arbor's quirky labyrinth of short, one-way, and diagonal streets.

"A few years ago, when we sat down with the information booth volunteers after the fair was over to assess how things had gone, they said that the question that kept coming up was, 'Where is Zingerman's?'" says Dave Kronenberg of the Michigan Guild. He asked the nationally known deli for help, and Zingerman's art director, Steve Wallag-Muno, responded with a small map. It was given out at Summer Art Fair booths, and Kronenberg plans to make it available to the other fairs this year.

From the deli's point of view, the map has proved to be a marketing gold mine. Business, which had slacked off during the Art Fair before the map, has boomed for the last two fairs.

Trash for Cash

For the third year in a row, Pioneer High School girls' tennis team co-captains Whitney Roberts, Cara Eisner, and Courtney Weinert will spend time every day of the Art Fair collecting trash.

As an annual fund-raiser, team members pick up the garbage at the Summer Art Fair, with all earnings going to the team. As team captains, Weinert, Eisner, and Roberts are on call, filling in whenever a teammate can't make it.

The tennis team is just one of many community groups that raise funds by working at the Art Fair. The Gabriel Richard Parent-Teacher Organization staffs the T-shirt booth at the Summer Art Fair with parents and kids. Boy Scouts and members of the Ann Arbor Art Association are among the stalwarts of the State Street Area Art Fair.

Every year, members of Arbor Rowing, an organization of scullers, show up late Saturday afternoon and leapfrog down the streets used by the Summer Art Fair, removing trash boxes and sweeping sidewalks and curbs.

When the cleanup starts, the streets are adrift in trash left behind by hundreds of thousands of visitors. Yet "by ten a.m. on Sunday morning the streets look perfect," says Marilyn Guoin, supplemental programs director of the fair's sponsor, the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans. Without the volunteers, says Guoin, "I don't know how we would run the show."

—Penny Schreiber ■

The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair is ranked as one of the top two shows in the nation because it has a broad base of community support. Individuals, local businesses and organizations, local government and educational institutions contribute a wide variety of valuable forms of support. The Street Art Fair thanks and recognizes these individuals and groups for their support of the 1995, 36th annual Ann Arbor Street Art Fair.

A special thanks is also due to those people who attend the fair and support the artists, and even the artists themselves. Many attendees and artists travel far distances to be a part of this event and we are pleased to welcome them to our community.

Sunshine Artist magazine, in its second annual Top 200 ranking of art fairs, selected the Ann Arbor Art Fair as one of the top two shows in the nation. The Street Art Fair is the original juried fair on S. University, E. University, and Church Street. The 1996 Ann Arbor Street Art Fair will take place July 24-27, 1996.

Ann Arbor Street Art Fair

The original fair is still on the cutting edge

Place: The Street Art Fair takes place on South University from Washtenaw to East University and on East U between Willard and the U-M campus, with a small section on Church Street.

Hours: Fair hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Facts & figures: The nonprofit Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, Inc., is governed by a twenty-member board of directors that includes South University merchants and Ann Arbor artists and townspeople. With 189 artists exhibiting their work, the Street Art Fair is the smallest of the three simultaneous fairs, and the most selective: its sixty-six new exhibitors this year were chosen from nearly 2,000 applicants. An additional fourteen from the Ann Arbor Potters Guild and nine from the U-M art school won places through separate jurying processes. These organizations exhibit by special invitation. For information about exhibitors or about the 1996 fair, July 24-27, write to the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, Box 1352, Ann Arbor 48106, or call (313) 994-5260.

Comments: Established in 1960, this original Ann Arbor art fair helped to spark the nationwide art fair movement. Its commitment to choosing artists on the cutting edge makes it the most prestigious—and usually the most expensive—of the three fairs. Many high-quality pieces sell for prices in three or four figures.

Prizes and purchase awards: On the first day of the fair, Wednesday, July 19, two outside jurors will give out ten $300 cash awards to exhibits of exceptionally high quality and originality. Look for the blue ribbons in the artists' booths on Thursday.

Information booth: Can't find your favorite Street Art Fair artist? Ask the volunteers at the information booth on the corner of South University and East University. Posters and T-shirts are on sale at two T-shirt booths, one located across the street from the information booth, the other on the corner of South U and Church Street.

A Red Cross trailer and a CB radio headquarters are set up just west of the South U-East U intersection. Volunteers from the Ann Arbor Emergency Radio and CB Group patrol the fair, helping to find lost children and relaying information to fair organizers on everything from crowd prob-

Live music and entertainment are featured at three locations: boogie-woogie pianist Mark "Mr. B" Braun will perform off and on throughout the fair on the street at the intersection of South University and East University, and a variety of artists will perform on South U near Washtenaw, and on Church Street just north of South U. For details, see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 55.

Children's activities: The Street Art Fair's children's activity booth, on Church Street just south of South U, offers youngsters a chance to try their own hands at artistic expression. Open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day, the booth is run by the Michigan Art Education Association. There is no fee, but donations are welcome and will be applied toward art scholarships.

Demonstrations: Since its inception, the Street Art Fair has had a strong commitment to education. Artists offer demonstrations during the fair; their names are flagged with [D] on the list below.

Exhibitors listed under two categories have been juried for both media.

state street art fair

ann arbor michigan 1995

28th annual
july 19 - 22, 1995

The state street area association, sponsors of the state street area art fair, wish to thank these ann arbor community organizations and volunteers:

ann arbor art association
boy scout troop #71
ann arbor jaycees
all others involved

we appreciate all your contributions to the state street area art fair. with your dedication and energy we continue to have a successful fair year after year.

State Street Area Art Fair

One of the best in the country

Place: Don't be fooled by this fair's name. Most of the artists in the State Street Area Art Fair set up on Maynard, East Liberty, William, and North University streets. The hundreds of booths on State Street south of William are actually part of the campus Summer Art Fair.

Hours: Fair hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Facts & figures: This fair is a project of the State Street Area Association, a business group that promotes the north-of-campus shopping district. This year it features the work of 270 artists, with an additional twelve exhibiting their work at the Ann Arbor Fiber Arts Guild booth through a separate jurying process. More than 107 artists are new this year; they were chosen from over 1,300 applicants. For information on the 1996 fair, July 24-27, or for artists' addresses and phone numbers, write to the State Street Area Art Fair, Box 4128, Ann Arbor 48106, or call (313) 663-6511.

Comments: Though still overshadowed locally by the Street Art Fair on South University, the State Street Area Art Fair has been aggressively juried for most of its twenty-eight years. Much of its artwork now rivals the original fair's in both quality and price, and a number of artists move freely between State Street and South U. Many artists prefer to exhibit in this fair because of its central location. In its own right, this fair ranks in the top ten nationally in fine arts sales, and in the top fifteen in fine crafts.

Prizes and purchase awards: This fair awards two $600 "Best of Show" cash awards (one for 2-D works and one for 3-D) and four $150 honorable mention prizes. The names of the prizewinners will be posted at the main information booth on State Street and East Liberty on Thursday. In addition, several State Street Area Association members have committed themselves to "purchase awards," agreeing to buy artworks costing $150 or more from the fair artists of their choice.

Information booths are set up at three locations to answer questions and to sell postcards, posters, caps, and T-shirts. This fair's main information booth, at State and East Liberty, is the best place to leave messages and get emergency help. There are also booths at Liberty and Division and at William and State.

Live music and entertainment are featured at two amplified stages, one at Liberty Plaza, on the corner of East Liberty and South Division (sponsored by WCBN) and another on State near Washington (sponsored by Oz's Music), and at two acoustic performance areas, one at the intersection of State and North University streets and the other at the north end of Thompson near the city's Maynard Street parking structure. For a schedule of these performances, see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 55.

The Children's Fire Safety House, at Liberty and Division, next to the First Aid Station, is a downsized replica of a two-story home. Ann Arbor firefighters are on hand to teach children how to escape a house fire. The house is open the same hours as the fair, and admission is free.

The food booth across the street from Liberty Plaza serves grilled chicken, hot dogs, hamburgers, Polish sausage, and canned drinks. Sponsored by the State Street Area Association, the booth will have the same hours as the fair: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

The Michigan Theater on East Liberty sells movie posters, T-shirts, and other film memorabilia at a booth outside the theater and presents art and foreign films and live performances in the evenings (see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 55).

Live broadcasts: WIOB (103 FM) broadcasts from a booth in front of the Michigan Theater Wednesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

At Liberty Plaza (East Liberty at South Division), fairgoers can try their own hands at artistic expression in the annual "Chalk the Park" celebration. Members of the Huron Valley Chapter of the American Institute of Architects will be passing out colored chalk for drawing pictures and designs on the sidewalk on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Children are especially welcome.

The Herb David Guitar Studio (East Liberty at Fifth Avenue) presents its popular porch performances again this year at various times throughout the fair.

The Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum features more than 250 hands-on science exhibits to entertain and educate visitors of all ages. Housed in a renovated historic firehouse on the corner of East Huron and Fifth Avenue, the air-conditioned museum is also a refuge for hot and weary fairgoers. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. (Saturday to 5). Admission is $4 for adults and $2.50 for students, seniors, and children over three. Children under twelve must be accompanied by an adult.

Nonprofit organization booths occupy the block on East Liberty between Division and Fifth Avenue. Representatives from about seventy-five local organizations will pass out literature and talk eagerly on everything from animal rights to AIDS.

Because Sometimes the Best Way to Enjoy the Art Fair Is to Get Away From It

The booths, the crowds, the heat... sure, it's fun. But when you're hungry and ready to relax, the last thing you want is to wait 45 minutes for a seat. Reserve your table for a leisurely dinner at Cousins. Just ten minutes away from the crowds, you can enjoy appetizers like Venison Pâté and House Smoked Salmon. Entrees like Brace of Quail with Dried Cherry Sauce and Roasted Veal Chops with Shiitake Mushrooms. And desserts like our house-made ice creams, fresh fruit tarts, and Triple Chocolate Decadence. A delightfully different menu every other week.

25TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION OF ART

It is with great pride that we celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair.
The Ann Arbor Summer Art Fair's success depends on numerous community volunteers and the support of local businesses. We appreciate the guidance provided by the City of Ann Arbor and the support of the Main Street Area Association.
We thank all the volunteers and individuals that have contributed their time to make this one of the best outdoor art fairs in the nation.

1995 ANN ARBOR SUMMER ART FAIR

Summer Art Fair

The youngest fair turns 25

Place: The Summer Art Fair is the only fair with two separate locations. The campus branch is on State Street from South University to William. The downtown section is on Main Street from Huron to William, and on Liberty from Ashley to Fifth Avenue.

Hours: Fair hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Facts & figures: The Summer Art Fair is organized by the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, a 1,500-member national artists' support organization. About 560 Guild artists share 540 booths, 314 on campus and 226 downtown. Members win places based on seniority, and can stay as long as their work meets minimum quality standards, so there isn't much turnover: only twenty-five exhibitors are new this year. For information about exhibitors, the Guild's Holiday and Greektown fairs, and the 1996 Summer Art Fair, to be held July 24-27, write to the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, 118 North Fourth Avenue, Ann Arbor 48104, or call (313) 662-3382.

Comments: The youngest and largest of the three simultaneous Ann Arbor Art Fairs, the Summer Art Fair is descended from a "free fair" organized along the U-M Diag in 1970. The Michigan Guild evolved to manage the fair, adding a second location downtown and gradually upgrading quality. As the only Ann Arbor fair controlled by the artists themselves, the Summer Art Fair doesn't jury out exhibitors just to bring in flashier new work; some artists have returned every year since the fair's founding. While there's less high art here than at the other fairs, a wide range of handmade fine art and contemporary crafts at a wide range of prices makes this the most diverse and affordable of the three fairs.

Information booths: Guild booths on State Street across from the LS&A Building and on Main Street at Liberty offer friendly assistance of all kinds. Caps, T-shirts, posters, and canvas bags are on sale at four souvenir booths, one at the corner of Main and William, one on Liberty at Main, and one at each end of the State Street segment of the fair.

Live music and entertainment are featured at three performance areas: the amplified MainStage at the Detroit Edison parking lot near the intersection of Main and William streets, sponsored by WEMU, and two acoustic performance areas, one at the intersection of West Liberty and Main and the other a block west at Liberty and Ashley. For details of the performance schedules, see Art Fair Entertainment, p. 55.

Edible Art Fare: Local restaurants sell food and drinks at this food court on West Liberty between Main and Ashley starting at 10 a.m. each day of the fair. See Food at the Fair, p. 76.

The Michigan Union Food Court:

Twenty-four outdoor vendors sell ethnic food and American favorites between the Michigan Union and the LS&A Building starting at 10:30 a.m. each day of the fair. See Food at the Fair, p. 76.

The Michigan Union offers large, cool, comfortable rest areas for tired fairgoers. It's open Wednesday and Thursday from 7 a.m. to midnight and Friday and Saturday from 7 a.m. to 2 a.m.

Across State Street, the air-conditioned U-M Museum of Art is open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., and admission is free. This year the museum is offering a special self-guided walking tour for fair visitors (see p. 8). Discounted cards, books, toys, and handicrafts from the museum gift shop will be on sale at a booth outside the museum on State Street.

Children's activities: The Imagination Station, a popular family arts activity area, is located at Post Office Plaza, on East Liberty at Fifth Avenue. From 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day of the fair, children of all ages can try their hands at such supervised art projects as making sun visors, jewelry, and origami while musicians, dancers, and jugglers perform.

The Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum features more than 250 hands-on science exhibits to entertain and educate visitors of all ages. Housed in a renovated historic firehouse on the corner of East Huron and Fifth Avenue, the air-conditioned museum is also a refuge for hot and weary fairgoers. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. (Saturday to 5). Admission is $4 for adults and $2.50 for students, seniors, and children over three. Children under twelve must be accompanied by an adult.

Nonprofit organization booths are located on East Liberty between Division and Fifth Avenue. Representatives from about seventy-five local organizations will pass out literature and talk eagerly on everything from animal rights to AIDS.

The Main Street Area Association provides information about downtown Ann Arbor and souvenirs at its booth at Main and Liberty.

Live broadcasts: WEMU (89.1 FM) broadcasts live from the MainStage in the

ART FAIR ENTERTAINMENT

Local singer-songwriter and poet Ken Cormier performs Wednesday at the Liberty and Ashley stage.

WEDNESDAY

Events are free unless otherwise noted. Schedule is subject to change.

ART FAIR STAGES

MainStage. Jazzy blues by vocalist Susan Chastain and guitarist Steve Reichbart (noon); jazz pianist Rick Roe (3 p.m.); jazz, blues, and R&B by the Tim Brockett Trio, an ensemble led by Hammond B-3 organist Brockett (4:30 p.m.); late-30s swing and 40s R&B by the II-V-I Orchestra (6 p.m.); and luscious vocal harmonies by the Chenille Sisters, the nationally renowned local trio of Cheryl Dawdy, Connie Huber, and Grace Morand, who specialize in humorous songs and witty audience repartee (7:30 p.m.). Noon-9 p.m., MainStage, Detroit Edison parking lot, corner of S. Main and E. William.

Liberty and Ashley. Traditional and contemporary folk songs and fiddle and guitar tunes by David Menefee, a local veteran known for his deep, resonant voice and tasty repertoire (noon); singer-songwriter and acoustic guitarist Chris Buhalis (1:30 p.m.); witty original songs by singer and proficient acoustic guitarist Bill Boley (3 p.m.); a "surprise appearance" by folk artists in town for the Ark's 30th Anniversary Reunion (4:30 p.m.); original music by Ken Cormier, a highly regarded local singer-songwriter and poet known for his fiery delivery, probing imagery, and passionate guitar work (6 p.m.); and originals, bluegrass standards, traditional spirituals, and country-rock tunes by the acoustic sextet Molasses Grass (7:30 p.m.). Noon-9 p.m., W. Liberty at S. Ashley.

Ann Arbor's quirky, talented Chenille Sisters are back at the art fairs for the first time in several years. You can hear their delicious vocal harmonies Wednesday at the MainStage.

Liberty and Main. Light classical arias and popular ballads by tenor Vito Abate (9:30 a.m.); barbershop and oldies by the local AYU Quartet (11 a.m.); yo-yo tricks and juggling by J. J. Pethtel of Columbus, Ohio (12:30 p.m.); the barbershop quartet 3 Men and a Tenor (2 p.m.); former Ringling Brothers Circus juggler Steve Kime (3:30 p.m.); music of the Andes, northern Mexico, and the Yaqui Indians performed by the Tucson-based group Khenany (6:30 p.m.); and the local female barbershop quartet Musical Moments (8 p.m.). 9:30 a.m.-9 p.m., W. ART FAIR WEEK

You've been shufflin' around Art Fair all day in the heat, jostlin' with the crowds, hagglin' with the artists, lookin' for the best deal of the day, and you just want some kind of relief. Suddenly a door opens, and a cool breeze wafts into the summer night, and sounds of hysterical laughter reaches your ears, and you realize this is what you've been lookin' for all day! It's the Mainstreet Comedy Showcase!!

Featuring

KEN BROWN

It's a comedy cavalcade as we present an onslaught of comedians led by a Mainstreet favorite. His first claim to fame was an appearance on "Star Search", which led to a spot on "Evening at the Improv"! Don't miss out on a comedy comet blazing his way to stardom!

You Should Wear Disposables For The Same Reason He Does.

Go ahead. Baby yourself with disposable contacts. It's the most comfortable and convenient way to wear contact lenses.

With disposables, your vision stays sharp and clear. There's no time for deposits to build up. After one week you simply throw them away and put in a fresh, new pair. And since there's no cleaning or disinfecting, the yearly cost to you is surprisingly affordable. See for yourself why disposable systems are considered the healthiest, most comfortable way to wear contact lenses.

FOOD AT THE FAIR

FOOD AT THE FAIR

From Argiero's to University Cafe

130 places to eat

Hiking across the miles from one end of the fair to the other can make an art hound growl with hunger. Ann Arbor's diverse assortment of ethnic and classic, upscale and down-home restaurants and cafes offers enough choices to satisfy virtually every taste—from sushi to gyros to pasta.

Whether you're in the mood for a full, sit-down meal in an intimate setting, a cool drink under the stars, or a grab-and-go sandwich, you should be able to find what you want at one of the restaurants or food booths throughout the fair.

The list below includes eating places within four blocks of the fair. Restaurants are arranged in alphabetical order by neighborhood, with each restaurant's name followed by coordinates referring to its location on the accompanying map. For instance, D2 means that Argiero's Italian restaurant can be found at the intersection of column D and row 4.

Prices for a meal for one, excluding beverage, tax, and tip:

$ (under $6)      $$$ ($12-$20)
 $$ ($6-$12)      $$$$ (over $20)

* = Alcohol is served

O = Outdoor service during the fair

My friends will kill me for running this! I'm a happily married woman with two truly outstanding single female friends currently living in Toledo. Both in late 40s, fun, bright, well read, community leaders. T: Indiana U. grad, works in health care; P: OSU grad, works in community services. Looks? Don't be superficial. (Both are quite attractive, though. One's blonde, one's brunette, both slim.) What they have to offer goes well beyond first impressions. These are outgoing and caring women with so much to share with others. They are both at a stage in their lives where their kids are just about launched and they are now able to begin new lives for themselves. One is divorced and one is widowed, both previously married to professional men. These are women of class and dignity and only the best will do! Only men of honesty and integrity need respond. These are my good friends and I am picky, picky! (I'm also a U-M grad and know that men of quality live in AA.) I'm only running this one month. If you have a place in your life for an extraordinary woman and are a man of character and integrity, don't let this pass you by. Please, letters only. Include your phone number and I will call you. 2713

Attractive, fit, SWPF, 25, enjoys travel, the arts and anything that promotes laughter, seeks SWPM, 25-33, for summer adventures or potential LTR. No rules, no games. Write. 2704

If you like walks, talks, movies, plays, music, fun times, quiet times, people, etc., and are a WPM who is honest, happy, emotionally secure, NS, 47-56, and ISO a possible LTR, please respond. 2705

ARTISTS' STUDIOS

Studio Names

Many artists sell under a studio name as well as a personal name. If you know only the business name, you can look up the exhibitor's own name here, then find the artist's fair and booth number in the Artist Index beginning on p. 95. (This list does not include studio names based on an artist's surname.)

| Studio                  | Artist                              |
|-------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| A. G. Jewelers          | Avery Groves                        |
| Action Photo            | Philip Borkowski                    |
| Against the Grain       |                                     |
